Jasmin Flower how can you say that about a non violent criminal? This isn't the kind of criminal I'm worried about on American streets. He is the sort of offender that has the best chance at true rehabilitation.

20-30 years in prison should only be given to violent or sexual offenders. This country is on bullshit with the shit they do for money. I'm not from Texas but I've lived here for 8 years and these cops have pulled me over illegally many times can't even count the amount of times I've been pulled over for no reason but they make up a reason. One time a cop pulled me over and said I did a u turn than I told him I have video evidence that I have not done a u turn and than he said what are you doing in this area I told him I was at a friends house than he told me theirs never any bmws over here so that's suspicious I had no license and was driving and I told them if they arrest me or take my weed it's illegal search and seizure and I'm suing them and they let me go after finding no drugs other than the weed I had

Colin Byrne: Seriously, people need to start thinking about whether the punishment fits the crime. 20-30 years for stealing some people's cash and jewelry is insane. Especially since this isn't some incorrigible, psychopathic maniac for whom there's no hope of recovery. The man had a drug problem (which can be treated). Drugs make you do a lot of things. 👍 1 🗨️ REPLY

Jessica Taylor 2 months ago

Y T ~ Not quite, but close! I'm glad we don't have the right to bear arms here but I am disgusted we risk arrest and prosecution if someone breaks in and we harm them! We recently had a case of 2 serial criminals (aged 28 and 37) who broke into a 78 year old pensioner's home. They were violent, aggressive and armed with a screw driver. The pensioner fought back and stabbed one of them with the screwdriver they were using to intimidate him. He died and Richard Osborn-Brooks (the pensioner) was arrested on suspicion of murder! That's totally messed up IMO!

Your country is beyond stupid now. The UK are literal sitting ducks for every piece of human garbage that can flood into it. I can only imagine what someone who lived through WW2 might have thought about the situation now. Banning knives and only the criminals have firearms and a 78-yo arrested for defending himself. Mr Brooks deserves a medal and the key to the city.

Good people own guns. Even in the UK, though it's difficult because anxiety ridden liberals think that restricting law abiding citizens prevents crime. I'm not an American, I'm a law abiding "good" firearm owner in Canada. The fact that you use the term "good" in the context of this discussion is telling. The good guys show up with guns when someone is on a rampage stabbing, shooting or driving over someone on the streets of your capital city. Guns don't kill people, bad people kill people, with guns,

'Good people' = those who wouldn't own a gun for the purpose of carrying out a crime. I've never said gun owners can not be good people...the vast majority ARE good people.

Gun deaths and vehicular deaths are unrelated and unaffected by each other. Whether guns are restricted or not, vehicular death

 1 REPLY*Y T 2 months ago (edited)

The gun deaths are vehicular deaths statistics are very related because of the relative concern and heavy breathing one set of statistics makes people versus the other set of statistics that in fact are greater but less bloviated. You've completely ignored the fact that I've pointed out that strict gun control "in the big bad US of A" is actually a good example of why it's ineffective against criminals.

Tyler Potts "he also raves about neighborhood watches " does that mean he wasnt promoting wireless security ? i dont see your logic there , he could have said the truth about neighborhood watches and lied about wireless security , if you dont see that possible then you must be an easy to fool sucker .

Tyler Potts i dont need evidence i just block this out just in case , and if i ever need to see what security is best for my house i would do an actual research about it , with completely ignoring what this man said on this matter .. because hidden commercials are everywhere and its better to ignore ALL of it rather than being lied to , the best way to chose is doing a research because commercials always LIE , its for their benefit and because of that fact they try to hide the fact that its a commercial .

this guy has alot of good points. i live in a ghetto and have a full camera system. i had to think like a criminal in order to protect myself. one thing he left out is rocks. you dont want any sort of decoration rocks in your yard, mostly front yard. these will always be used to break something of yours. most importantly block watch like he said. i know every single thing about my street. i know what cars come down it through the day, i know when everyone leaves and comes home. i know every car that visits my neighbors. and if any car parks on my street that looks abnormal, i do something about it. i have 10 abandoned houses on my street so theres alot of trouble ive stopped. unfortunately my neighbors are fucking pussies and they say "i mind my own business" yah well they all mind their own business until someone breaks in their shit and then all of a sudden they want everyone to help them. i look out for everyone regardless. but im sick and fucking tired of all these lame excuses from people peeking out their windows and not doing a fucking thing about anything. it seriously only takes a few neighbors to connect with each other to keep the street safe. my entire house is also covered in warning signs that i will kill someone and im fully loaded with weapons if anyone even tries to come in my house. ive never had one issue on my property, thieves i always see at night walk right past my house and always go straight to my neighbors. and then i have to yell at them and make sure they know not to come back on this street. my entire front door is loaded with amendment rights and gun signs as well as my fence. i see even people like jehovah witnesses scurry away quickly from my house and walk away as fast as possible. hell my mailman wont even go on my porch, he slam dunks my mail into the box from over the railing. finally one day i had to come out and tell him its ok. one of my neighbors even wanted to borrow a tool from me once, but was to afraid i might shoot him from my window if he was in my yard lol.

Drew McGivhan 5 days ago

sounds like you're overly obsessed with defense and protection though... how would you know someone is a thief or criminal, unless you've seen them commit a crime... even more so, how have you seen them looking around, are you always looking? good point about rocks and community awareness, but you'll realistically never know every new vehicle or face around you probably, though you might get to know most which is cool, but that's okay. You should definitely try to nicely talk to your neighbors, just to build community, but especially if you think your neighborhood is under threat.. but yeah, maybe a shitload of signs is overkill, might make your neighbors think you're the "crazy old man who screams 'get off of my lawn!' " hahaha

This is not particularly surprising. The psychological profiles of cops and career criminals are far more similar to each other than they are to other societal groups; further, this is not news, it has been known for at least 3 decades.

Wayne Summers > Funny how he looks and sounds like a cop

My best friend Jeff used to be an officer in the LAPD, and when he was training in the academy an instructor asked the class, "What is the most important part of being a good cop?"

He got all kinds of responses from the class -- but none of them were the answer he gave: "Being a better crook." In other words, to truly be a good crimefighter you have to better at thinking like a criminal than that actual criminals themselves.

This reminds me of something that Arthur C. Clarke once wrote about a conversation with a professor of criminology. When asked why he decided to study the psychology of criminal behavior, the professor answered, "It was either that, or become a criminal."

I knew a couple who had an African grey parrot who could imitate their kids, the dog, the husband, perfectly. They had had a break in, and they woke up to the sound of the husband shouting "what the hell are you guys doin?" Which he would do with the kids all the time as a joke. The parrot said this when it saw a stranger, and then laughed this robust maniacal laugh. When the guy got downstairs to see what was going on, all he saw was guys running through the back yard. So I guess forget the dog, buy a parrot.

There are several moments in this interview where it's clear that his entire point in agreeing to it, was to try and make himself look as sympathetic as possible to his future parole hearing. It's quite unlikely that he would have any qualms with getting violent if confronted, and cornered in a robbery.
